

Swinburne University of Technology

Enabling Technologies Transcript

MedTech Vic's, Enabling Technologies platform is the very first of its kind. People are at the heart of everything we do.

We co-design with people living with disabilities at the centre, working together with our researchers, engineers and designers, our clinicians and carers using brand new, innovative technology, like our volumetric capture studio.

We create a team in our living lab to ideate and co-create prototypes of potential new solutions, solutions that help people lead their lives - their way.

Manufacturers are involved too, assessing economic viability and setting up local supply chains that produce and scale to meet global needs.

An inclusive future for medical innovation is here, driven by those who need it most.

