

Do you live with someone experiencing Hoarding Disorder? Would you like free information and support?

Researchers at Swinburne University of Technology have developed a free group program to assist people who care for someone who experiences Hoarding Disorder. The program aims to provide information about the causes and treatment of Hoarding and to develop strategies to assist you with living with Hoarding.

The program has been developed for people (including spouses, parents, siblings, children, partners or carers) who live or support someone experiencing Hoarding. There is no need for the person you care about to be formally diagnosed with Hoarding Disorder or to be in treatment. If you are over 18 years of age, and the person experiencing Hoarding is over 18 and you would like further information please contact
